It was fun having you as one of my sisters this year. Gee, we sure learned a lot about each other this year. Don't forget to write to me this summer. It's hard to think of anything to write. I had a long speech made up for you and now my mind is as blank as a "brick wall."

Boy, wasn't it fun in Science. It wasn't ever quiet in there with us in the back row. How are the chemical formulas?

Oh yes, and then there was Study Hall. Who wants to study in there. All we do is talk! study real hard. I hope we get some classes together next year and in our Jr. and Senior years. That good old Senior year never to be forgotten. Be good to Bob, Mike, Jack, and the rest of them. Whoever they may be. I don't want to take up all of this so I'll cut it short. See you next year and be good. (As you always are.)

Dear Vicki: I thought it appropriate to follow Cindy's note for all her life following. I shall tell you as I see total Cindy as many times, always enjoy those before you in now for they are the most cherished. Hope your summer is a happy one & spend winter as you are - Sincerely, Cindless Mom.

Students 72

A barrage of students may be seen coming down the halls of EHS at constant intervals throughout the day. Each student tries to reach his next classroom with as little a struggle as possible.

There is a Feeling of Unity

The girls hold the monopoly for using every available inch of mirror space.

School officially begins each morning at 8:10 after the second bell rings, but activity begins much earlier as buses bring students to the school doors. The halls begin to fill up with laughing students planning the day's activities or various ones hurriedly scanning a textbook for a first hour exam.

In the crowded washroom, girls are putting the finishing touches on their coiffures.

A few last-minute arrivals dash from their cars in the parking lot up to their lockers, just in time to enter their first hour class.

As first period ends, the halls are crowded as students hurry to their next class. Occasionally a traveling teacher with no fixed classroom is caught in the rush and carried along by the crowd. Lines around the drinking fountains block traffic in the narrow hallways on a particularly thirsty day.

Assisting new students and visitors at EHS is Marty Bauer, who volunteers his services as monitor.

Connie Platts and Vicki Nafziger learn the customary duties of maintaining a home.

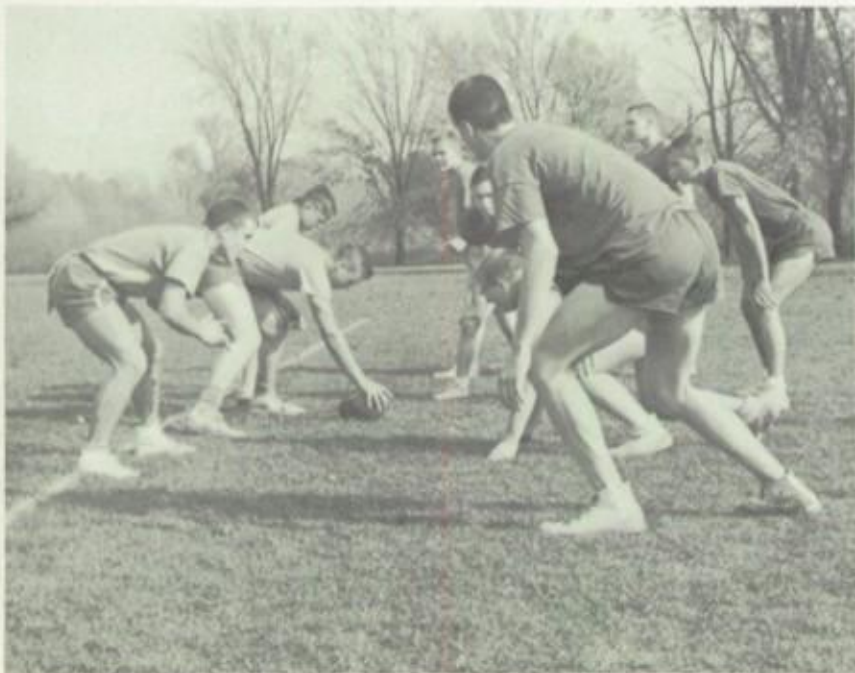

The pride of the senior class and home to many during the football games is "The Hut."

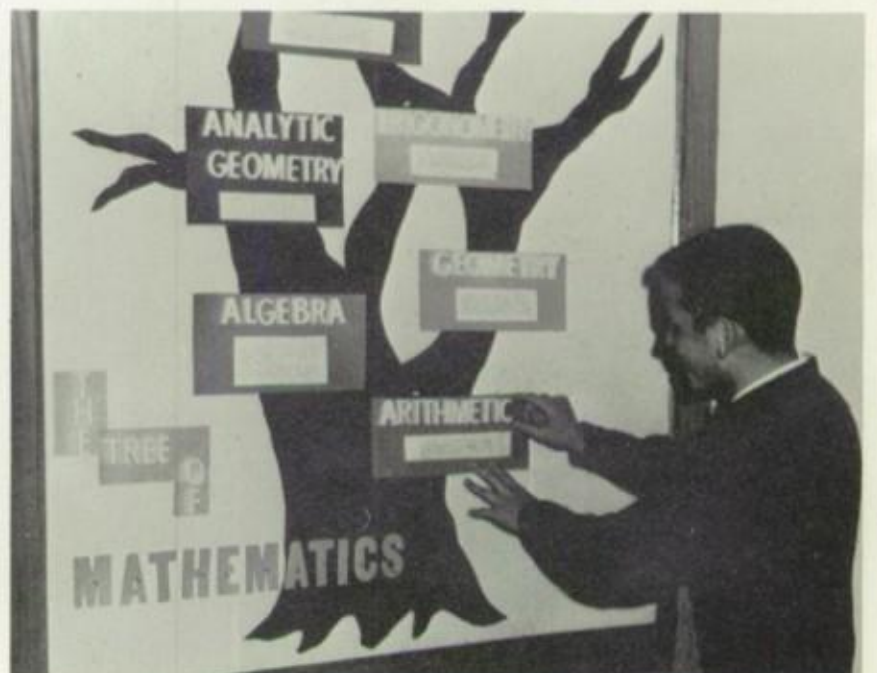

Sack lunches are eaten in the gym in the midst of intramural sports.

A physical education class exemplifies coordination and alertness.

The stress on bulletin boards is one more facet of applied education. Curt Quass adds a finishing touch.

*icki - I saw was fun. Having me in science class with me and home Ec. I'll see you this fall if you want. Good Luck.
 Trish*

*can't you glad to visit
 monitor*

A Sense of Respect

EHS provides ample parking space for Pat Lean and Theresa Voelkel, who drive to school.

Tom Helgert observes that a locker can only hold SO much.

The sound of movie projectors rival the quiet of the study hall. The corridors are "alive" with the vital sounds of a functioning school--the band members tuning their instruments, the piercing sounds of the saw in shop class, the punching of typewriter keys, and a continuous murmur from chemistry students during a laboratory period.

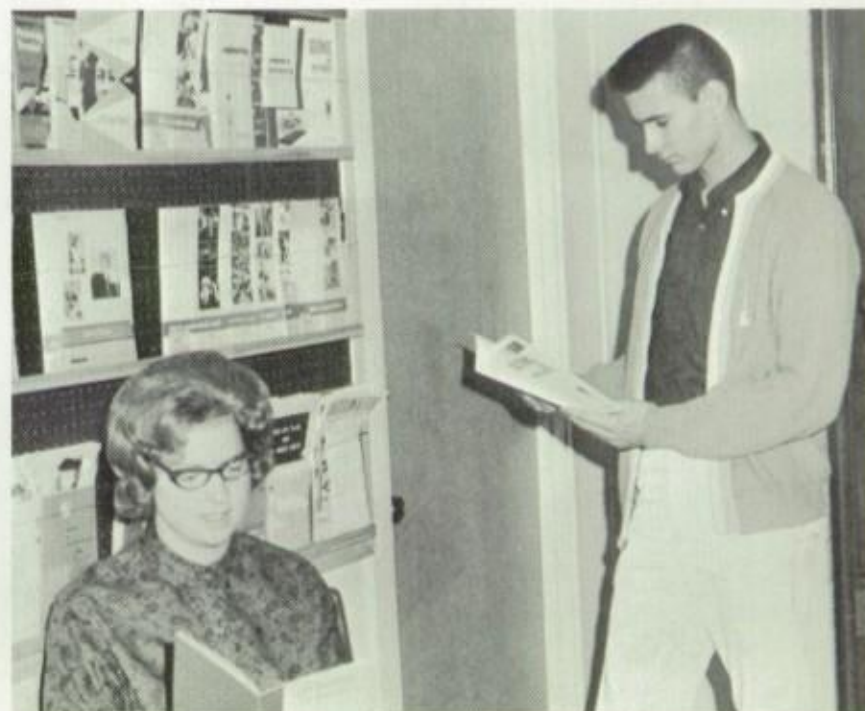

Activity abruptly stops with the ringing of the shower bell or blaring of the fire alarm.

Monitors and attendance-slip collectors perform their assigned duties efficiently and noiselessly.

The school takes the role of a modern, producing factory; work is in continual states of completion and "workers" go about their tasks.

Any monotony quickly fades when the clock shows only five minutes before the ringing of the noon dismissal bell.

The choice of a career after graduation confronts seniors Lois Blakesley and Jay Gerlach.

After a hard day's toil, students eagerly board buses for transportation home.

Coupled with entertainment, a lyceum program, "Hall of Science," by H. Lynn Bloxom stimulates new interests.

The couple is not an infrequent sight along corridors and staircases at EHS.

Inspired by the cheerleaders, culottes are the latest "fad" in girls' clothing.

With the twist fading slowly away, Guy Iverson and Jo Nussbaum demonstrate their talents at dancing the limbo. A post-game mixer provides the opportunity.

Before returning to classes after an absence, Wally Utter receives his excuse slip from Mr. Thieleke.

Usage of the P.A. system helps Dick Dailey to develop confidence in speaking.

Sue Welch checks a magazine out to Al McMillan, showing the library's assortment of literature.

Elaine August assists in the high school office, learning the duties of a secretary.

Tests, exams, and comprehensive reviews have come to mean the same thing--tedious study.

John Cory is just one of many students who purchases a cafeteria lunch ticket.

Increased school enrollment has led to the establishment of truly large study halls. The old choir room is presently serving this immediate need.

A Pride in Learning

At noon, students with sack lunches fill the gym bleachers because crowded cafeteria conditions will not allow them to eat in the lunchroom. (On a nice day, half of the school spends noon-hours uptown.)

Noon-hour activities may vary from club meetings to working on bulletin boards or cramming for examinations. In the winter, intramural sport contests amuse spectators in the gym, although basketballs sometimes prove disconcerting when they bounce into lunches.

The ordinary day might be varied with a lyceum program or a pep rally in the gymnasium.

Although school officially ends at 3:36, activity still does not alter its pace. Cheerleaders practice by the trophy case, basketball players work out in the gym, and the ELK staff works on the layout of the annual.

Student teachers--Miss Maier, Mr. Hirsig, Mr. Lochner, and Miss Schmidt--practice what they're taught.

Vicki,
Be good to
Jack, Bob, Mike,
and all the others.
Best of luck to a

ACADEMIC

In the midst of new students and teachers, Mr. Deane Page, our new principal, is often seen.

Mr. Robert Houg has assumed the duties of superintendent of the Elkhorn Area Schools.

A Change of

Miss Olsen arrives each morning to unlock the doors to the new offices in the "white house."

Dr. A. K. Stenstrom (Clerk), an Elkhorn optometrist, joined the school board in July of 1960.

Mr. Rulo Clark, Jr., a member of the board since Oct. 1961, operates a farm.

Mr. Robert Reed (Pres.) operates a mink ranch and is a partner in "The Two Seasons" recreation center. He joined the board in April, 1955.

A change in administration greeted E.H.S. students as they came back to school last fall.

Replacing Superintendent William Paton, Robert D. Houg previously held an identical position with the schools at New Lisbon, Wisconsin.

Due to existing space problems within the main school building, the superintendent, his staff, and his conferences have been transferred to the Ryan house immediately to the rear of the central building. The Board, too, occupies a conference room in this house.

Supt. Houg works closely with the school board in formulating school policy. Mr. Page, in turn, carries out this policy on the high school level, always ready to meet and discuss with students their problems or projects.

The active citizens that comprise the Board of Education (pictured individually below) give freely of their time to conduct the business of the Elkhorn Area School System. The benefits reaped by the community from their dedicated work are endless.

During the past year, they have worked closely with the architectural firm of Goebel and Balestrieri in planning a new, modern high school with adequate space for future years. Before the bond issue referendum, the Board held several informational meetings to acquaint the public with the proposed facilities in the new high school and the cost to the taxpayers. The Board feels that an informed people can more intelligently make the proper decisions when the time deems it necessary.

The Board's efforts concerning the construction of new school facilities are entirely dependent on the district voters.

Command

Mr. Ted Dobrick, a member since July, 1962, operates a large farm on the edge of the school district.

Mrs. Gerald Richards, wife of a local dentist, has worked with the board since July, 1960.

Mr. Howard Bray (Treas.) runs a farm and sells insurance. He has been with the board since August, 1957.

Mr. Gilbert Church, oldest member of the board beginning his service in July, 1954, owns and operates the Elkhorn Lumber Co.

Functioning in the superintendent's office are Mrs. Margaret Jenkins and Miss Elma Olsen.

Meeting the needs of both students and administration is the duty of Mrs. Opal Ihlenfeldt and Mrs. Mildred Kelly.

For Everyone's Service,

Our high school's health coordinator and registered nurse is Mrs. Rada Kohl.

Mimeography, duplicating, keeping up with the correspondence and recording attendance are only a few of the varied duties performed by the capable and efficient secretaries in the high school and superintendent's office. Selling hot lunch tickets, game and bus passes, issuing supplies to students and faculty, and reading announcements over the P.A. system keep the staff in close contact with the student body. Another one of their duties is to keep the student activity book up to date.

Mrs. Rada Kohl, serving EHS as the school nurse, is in charge of a varied health program during the year. In addition to checking on absences due to illnesses, her responsibilities include the tuberculous skin testing clinic, the immunization clinics, the vision and hearing testing program, and the WIAA and athletic benefit plan.

Our bus drivers are: Dean Bray, William Collins, Richard Katzman, Henry Bruell, Russel Newman, George Taft. KNEELING: Harold Anderson, Harry Enloe, Earl Papenfus, Willis Ludtke.

Working in the hot lunch cafeteria are: Mrs. Beulah Faestel, Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Dorothy Peterson, and Mrs. Hazel Amon.

For Everyone's Recognition

No school of any variety can hope to continue its dedicated work without the aid and assistance that certain individuals give it. Our cafeteria cooks, bus drivers, and janitorial staff illustrate this point.

The Elkhorn Area Schools' bus drivers bear the responsibility of transporting students safely and dependably to and from school. This is surely an asset to students living in rural areas of the district.

The cafeteria cooks take the job of preparing delicious and properly-balanced meal for the students who buy "hot lunch."

Elkhorn High School is fortunate to employ a maintenance superintendent in the person of Mr. John Vavra. He oversees activity centering around the buildings, adjoining grounds, and transportation.

The maintenance staff consists of John Vavra, George Taft, Prentice Stearns, Ed Phelps, Fred Annis and Paul Olivas.

The Urge to Improve

All ninety members of the Elkhorn High School band were very proud of their new bandroom. Because of the crowded conditions, the third floor bandroom was moved to the industrial arts shop on the north end of the school building.

For the first time, the students had the opportunity to listen to instruments across the band, a necessary need for any musician.

The band's activities for the 1963-64 year were many and varied. One of the events was marching in the half-time show for the Milton-Eureka College football game. Another activity was the 1963 Wisconsin State Band Day at Madison, Wisconsin.

The band also played numerous concerts of which the most important were the Christmas Nativity Concert and the Annual Spring Concert. The band members were often joined by choir members. During May, members also attended the District Band Day at Whitewater.

The Wind Ensemble is an exclusive organization in which about forty of the band's outstanding players form a musical group of their own. The students held rehearsals two days a week and gave a concert in the spring. The Wind Ensemble was often called upon to play for special school functions and activities.

The Pep Band is a group of band students who volunteer to play for the home basketball games. The members are those students who provide the pep and entertainment for the spectators by playing the school song and other lively numbers.

The Tuneweavers, who are the school's stage and dance band, provide music and entertainment at mixers and other social functions. This group, too, was run on a volunteer basis.

Each of these outgrowths of the regular band helps to create new talents, develop greater skill in playing one's instrument, and obtain a greater appreciation for music through group participation.

The pep band performs between basketball games and at half-time of the A-squad game. Under the direction of student conductors, and supervision of Mr. Hughes, the selections vary from the school pep song to the "Star Spangled Banner" to the "basanova."

Sing for Appreciation,

CHOIR OFFICERS--Mr. Anderson, K. Adsit, K. Kolden, N. Susina, B. Conover, G. Riley, W. Utter.

The choir started another year of singing under the direction of Mr. Anderson.

The tempo soon switched from patriotic songs to those of Christmas, in expectation of the 1963 Nativity program. This annual Christmas concert was held on December 17th and featured both the chorus and the band. Many voices lent their contribution to the program, with the freshman and sophomore Girls' Glee Club, the Junior High Chorus, and the Elementary Chorus participating also.

Christmas came and went, but the enthusiasm did not cease nor did the activities. Soon after Christmas vacation, the choir members began rehearsing their numbers for the Whitewater Chorus Contest and for the annual Spring Concert.

The Spring Concert featured not only the selections by the Mixed Chorus and Glee Club, but also solos by a few of the top vocalists.

The hearty acceptance of the public was an ample reward for the hard work and rehearsal-time.

The Girls' Glee Club is composed solely of freshman and sophomore girls. Mr. Anderson directs the group which meets one hour a day.

The girls join this singing group to further their talents in singing and also to enjoy the gatherings. The sessions held are very informal and help to contribute a casual air to the period.

The girls practice their arrangements and demonstrate their talents at some of the public events offered by the high school.

Like the mixed chorus, there is participation in the annual Nativity concert and the Spring Concert. These appearances before the townspeople and parents develop poise and reassurance in their abilities and themselves.

Mr. Anderson accepts the responsibility to correlate both of the choral groups.

Due to the large enrollment at EHS, the chorus and band have been forced to rehearse in the former agriculture workshop.

Sharyn Scheiby withdraws her choral arrangements from the cabinet in the music room. Each member has his own individual folder.

Goals for Tomorrow: Scholarship

A hearty handshake from Mr. Page is extended to Curt Quass, seen escorted by Bill Morris, on his induction into the Society.

Jill Carroll, vice-president of the Society, explains the Society's shield with its torch of learning to the students.

Character, scholarship, leadership, service--these are the guideposts of the National Honor Society. The Elkhorn chapter is a branch of a nation-wide organization which is set up to honor outstanding high school students.

To be accepted as a member of the Honor Society, a student must achieve a 2.5 grade average for all full-time academic subjects at the end of the four semesters; this qualification is slightly lowered with each succeeding semester. The candidate must be of good character, be an able and responsible leader, and a helpful participant in community, home, church, and school affairs.

During this past year, the Society members have visited the campuses of the University of Wisconsin and Whitewater State College. Students were able to see what it would be like to attend these schools. They listened to lectures and speeches given by professors and college officials.

The 1963-64 Student Council met during the summer months to plan its calendar of events for the coming year. Delegates distributed textbooks to students at registration and sponsored "Howdy Day," a get-acquainted day, during which students and faculty wore colorful "Howdy!" tags.

One of the council's aims during the year was to promote better feeling between the council and the rest of the student body. As a result, the Student Council Service Club, an auxiliary to the council, was established to aid the council in its endeavors.

Our student council spent a busy year sponsoring Homecoming, the Veterans' Day program, Parents' Night, and the continuous projects, such as safe driving, locker inspection, and Spirit Cup.

The Student Council spent a rewarding year and considers its highest goal that of equal representation between student and administrator.

Endurance from Latium

Mr. (Horatio) Thieleke accepts a bid at the Latin Club's slave sale. New members were put on the block and auctioned off.

The Latin Club started off the year by winning the Homecoming float competition between clubs. Cleopatra's barge was constructed and bore the theme "We'll Sail 'Em Down the Nile."

For the school's open house in November, the Latin room was, as is usual, well decorated with murals of the forum and Roman life.

Later that month, in one of the most hilarious assemblies ever held, the Latin Club auctioned off its first-year members as slaves. A fanfare by the Roman musicians was followed by the reading of a proclamation by President Mike Shaw, explaining that all sales would strictly be cash-and-carry. Next, the centurions led the poor, dirty, barefoot slaves around the gym for exhibition. In the confusion, several slaves broke loose from their shackles and had to be recaptured.

With the entrance of auctioneer Neilus Thielekus, clad in a "curtained" toga and laurel wreath, the bidding began. Excitement rose as two groups competed for the same person. By the time all the slaves were sold, the total money collected was over $100, a part of which was donated to the A.F.S. Club.

The future of the slaves? There were two fun-filled days for their masters--but hard work for them in carting stacks of books to classes and cleaning out someone else's dirty locker.

To compensate these slaves for their cooperation during those two trying days, a party was held to welcome the new members into the club.

During the year, the club celebrated other seasonal festivals in honor of the Romans.

Mrs. Daggett, the club advisor, was ably assisted by President Mike Shaw, Vice-president Jane Strom, Treasurer Liz Bill, and Secretary Vicki Fish.

Mrs. Daggett holds a replica of a Roman death mask that she purchased on one of her trips to Italy.

Cleopatra couldn't have asked for a more beautiful barge than the one constructed by the Latin Club for Homecoming.

Peace Through Competition

A national organization, the Girls' Athletic Association, promotes interest and participation in athletics among girls, encourages good sportsmanship, creates interest in improving health, and develops good leadership qualities.

Its recreational and athletic activities for this year included speedball, basketball, bowling, and volleyball. Teams are selected from the membership, and they compete with each other.

Each sport is climaxed by a tournament to determine the champion team. Sports Nights are held at various schools in the Elkhorn area, which many of the members attend.

The program is correlated by Miss Schlough, the girls' physical-education instructor.

Competition, accompanied by fun and cooperation, make for another successful year.

President of the G.A.A., Rosanne Channing, heads the organization on the student level at Elkhorn High School. Rosanne's chief duty is to preside over business meetings and to help the group's director in formulating activities.

"Walk together, talk together, O ye peoples of the world, then and only then ye shall have peace." This ancient proverb, taken from the Sanscrit, is the motto for the American Field Service. The A.F.S. Club's purpose is to create interest in the different cultures of the world and, through this, to establish understanding among its peoples.

The A.F.S. Club supports the international family by selling Christmas cards and promoting other money-making projects.

Club members have the opportunity to hear area exchange students speak about their countries. The highlight of this year's activities was the A.F.S. Night held in November. More than one-hundred Elkhorn High School students and their parents came to meet the area students from Japan, Uganda, Brazil, Argentina, Ecuador, Uruguay, England, and Turkey.

A.F.S. Night offered foreign exchange students, local students and residents the opportunity to meet and converse with one another. The event was sponsored by the EHS American Field Service Club.

Preparing Today

Ernie Robers has carefully planned, cut, and assembled his end-table. A knowledge of woodworking is a valuable talent.

The Industrial Arts Club is open to those especially interested in furthering their talents in manual skills.

Although this is a club with a relatively small membership, the members complete projects in the diversified and intricate arts of wood, plastic, leather, and metal-working.

It is in the sessions held by this club that its members are afforded the opportunity to apply the basic skills they acquired in the classroom or shop class. These skills are put into practice on more difficult projects.

Membership is limited to those students enrolled in industrial arts courses and those who are capable of applying the concepts taught.

In conjunction with the Grade and High School Science Fair this year, April 3rd, 1964, members exhibited their projects where they were judged in the four various classes mentioned above.

The Future Teachers of America and the librarians are two important functions of our school.

The members of the FTA were very busy this year. They had two candy sales, one in November and one in February, and they also had a mixer in October. The interesting things about these activities is that the proceeds don't go to the members of the FTA. Instead, the money collected helps to finance the Future Teachers' scholarship which will go to some worthy senior.

The librarians, while not so active socially, were very busy this year. There are fourteen librarians, and they assist Mrs. Bray in the varied library duties. These girls also sold paperback books in the library. This activity means a lot of time and effort, and they make no profit. The librarians' sole motive is to serve the students and teachers of Elkhorn High School.

Preparedness

The F.H.A., or Future Homemakers of America, offers opportunities for the development of individual initiative in accomplishing activities which relate to homemaking.

Activities include collecting funds for UNICEF, sponsoring, with cooperation from the F.F.A., the annual Snowball dance, and a spring style show featuring the designs of its members.

The Future Farmers of America and the Wisconsin Junior Dairymen have similar objectives but in the field of agriculture. New and applied agricultural techniques are studied, evaluated, and put into practice by the members.

The achievements of the F.F.A. member culminate in fields of judging and exhibition of animals. The W.J.D.A. centers its attention on dairy herd improvement; herein lies its foundation for advancement.

Mr. Neinfeldt, adviser for The ELK, confers with the photo editor, Bill Morris, in the high school dark-room.

Our yearbook, The ELK, represents an effort by the students to implant their lasting impression in the history of Elkhorn High School.

To compile such an accurate and interesting record takes time and a large amount of effort. The editorial staff is assisted by several students who donate their abilities and time.

The tradition of the ELK is old. The yearbooks of the preceding two years, 1962 and 1963, were awarded first place ratings by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Neinfeldt, the annual enables students to study and practice journalism. Mary Bill, one of the two co-editors, attended the 1963 High School Journalism Clinic at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. There she studied annual lay-out and design.

The goal of the ELK staff is to maintain and better the mark established by previous yearbooks.

The Elk Broadcaster is another means by which able students may show their journalistic abilities.

The Elk Broadcaster has been in existence three years and undergone many alterations. The staff was originally composed of interested students of the sophomore class. The scope was increased the next year by allowing all classes to participate that so desired.

The articles researched and reported by EHS students are weekly additions to the local newspaper. The staff uncovers its own assignments, reports them factually, proofreads the final copy, and sends everything off for publication.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Fischer, these student reporters acquaint the Elkhorn public with the events and opinions which occur at the high school. To further the work of the students, each was granted a press card at the beginning of the year.

Co-editor Cheryl Rinehart attended the 1963 High School Journalism Clinic at the U of W under the scholarship sponsored by The Elkhorn Independent.

ACTIVITIES

Despite Elkhorn's defeat at the hands of the Comets, there were many exciting football plays on Homecoming night. The Elks close in to bring down the ball-carrier in this instance.

Elks are Scoured Out

The freshmen "wormed" their float into first place with a clever caterpillar and the slogan "We'll Walk All Over 'Em."

Top honors were again taken by the class of 1967 for their adaptation of "West Side Story" in the skit contest.

Homecoming was a very special time at Elkhorn High School this year. The festivities lasted two days, but the planning for these two short days can be traced back several more.

Class spirit was at its highest as class delegates and volunteers created designs for their float or skit entry. The night before the Homecoming parade saw students hurriedly stuffing the last napkin on their float or memorizing their lines for the skit judging. In the midst of this turmoil, the members of the homecoming court were directed through the steps of the grand march and dance.

Crowds lined the streets of Elkhorn as the high school band signaled the start of the annual parade.

The band was followed by the football squad, cheerleaders, and floats. The freshman "invaders" were overjoyed when it was announced their float won the class competition. This award reflected the effort put into the project.

by Comets

Members of the Latin Club, too, were pleased with their first-place rating for club floats.

Many more spectators packed the gym bleachers for the skit contest. The freshmen were again awarded top honors for their adaptation of "West Side Story."

October 4th, 1963, was the climax of all activities, as the Elks marched onto the athletic field to face the Delavan Comets in the Homecoming football match. Though defeated 35 to 7, the students and townspeople backed their team to the fullest.

Later that evening, the king of Homecoming, Mike Gray, escorted his queen, Janet Fleming, to the throne from which they reigned over the dance. To the music of "Autumn Leaves," the members of the court led their escorts through the grand march. Players from the varsity football squad escorted the class delegates.

Homecoming officially ended at 12:00, and all were rewarded with a chance for relaxation.

Cheerleaders--Patti Kenney and Kathy Welch--start the festivities off with a lively snake dance.

The high school band announces the time for the 1963 Homecoming parade to begin. Spectators lined both sides of the street.

JUNIOR PROM COURT--John Warthman, Janet Fleming, Bill Morris, Karen Jorgensen, Dennis Batz, Pat Lean, Calvin Graham, Marsha Rathje, Jack Noltze, Chris LaLonde, Dick Pollak, Shelli Mentz, John Grunseth and Jackie Dunham. On throne is King Ken Burns and Queen Kathy Kolden.

JUNIOR PROM ROYALTY--King Ken Burns and Queen Kathy Kolden.

"Al-Di-La"

For a few brief hours, on April 27, 1963, the Kinne Gym was transformed into a Roman Forum.

Pink and white pillars reached to the sky. A marble fountain in the center of the square added to the feeling of Al-Di-La, the theme for the Junior Prom.

King Ken Burns, selected by the junior class, chose Kathy Kolden to be his queen. They reigned over the affair from a majestic white columned throne at the end of the gym.

The grand march was executed with the utmost of precision and beauty. The members of the court were a fitting tribute to their class and their royal couple.

The music of Bud Wilber's orchestra drifted from a gondola until 11:30. A post prom party was sponsored by the V.F.W. post of Elkhorn.

Three weeks before the night of the Junior Prom, the Class of '64 began to organize. There were several meetings to decide on the theme for this, the most important of all dances.

Three days before the Prom, Nancy Zinzow, the chairman, and Jackie Dunham started to supervise work.

The theme of "Al-Di-La" had been suggested, and sketches of an Italian scene were submitted for approval. This idea was selected.

Junior boys in the industrial arts course were selected to start constructing several pillars and the forum. In the background, the court of honor could be found being drilled in their steps through the grand march. The art department and a wonderful turn-out of class members began assembling the decorations. Many pillars were draped with crepe paper, and gondolas sparkled brilliantly along the bleachers.

All this beauty, and the work behind it, will always be remembered.

With a backdrop of pink streamers, the throne was a fitting tribute both to the royal couple, Ken Burns and Kathy Kolden, and to the Class of 1964 whose devoted effort helped to make this evening the marvelous success that it was.

A Roman Adventure

Proud parents and students watched as the court of honor danced. In the midst of the forum, flanked with pink and white pillars, the court members and students later joined together to dance to the music of "Al-Di-La." A unique fountain adorned the center of the gym.

Proudly posing in front of their glistening castle are the members of the Snowball court of honor--Glenda Fish, Lennis Nienast, Jill Carroll, Queen Nancy Stoflet, King Dennis Batz, Chuck Palmer, Fritz Hanford, and Steve Burgess.

"Crystal Cache"

Susan Renner and Miss Ruhsam gladly sell Snowball tickets to Pete McCall on the night of the dance. The Snowball has been a social event at EHS for many years.

This year's Snowball dance was held on January 11, 1964. The dance was originally scheduled for December 7, 1963; the official thirty days of mourning for President Kennedy encompassed this time and so the evening was postponed. It was through mutual respect of President Kennedy that the students and members of the Future Homemakers and Future Farmers favored this decision.

The theme of the 1964 Snowball was "Crystal Cache." The decorations truly made it a beautiful hideaway for all the couples who attended. The glistening castle, surrounded by snow-covered evergreens and moat, was fashioned after the royal castles in medieval Europe.

The spotlights, reflecting the misty blue castle, added an air of mystery to the winter night. Imaginations were used to dream of a fair damsel in one of the three, pastel-striped towers watching over the castle.

Much time was also put into the decorations and presentation of the court.

Faculty members, students, alumni, and chaperones were justifiably proud of the Snowball dance. The evening and its success was a tribute to the Future Homemakers, Future Farmers, and their advisers, whose joint cooperation and supervision were evident.

An Enchanting Hideway

The court members practiced nightly for a week before the dance. The organizations decorated many hours the Friday Saturday of the dance. Preparation dated back several weeks, as the chairmen planned and brought supplies for the final event.

The chairmen, and members working under them, worked hard on the production and selling of tickets, the preparations for refreshments, and the selection of an orchestra. There was full cooperation between the general chairmen, one from the Future Homemakers of America and another from the Future Farmers of America. The king and other male members of the court were voted for by both the FFA and FHA. The boys then asked girls from the FHA to be on the court with them.

Reigning over the gala affair were King Dennis Batz and Queen Nancy Stoflet. Dancing to the music of Bud Wilbur's orchestra were the other members of the court--Lennis Nienast, Fritz Hanford, Glenda Fish, Steve Burgess, Jill Carroll, and Chuck Palmer.

Joanne Thompson, Jill Carroll, Mary Bjorge, Janet Wolline, and Becky Nafziger work busily on the decorations for the Snowball dance.

The band and chorus of both the junior high and high school combined their talents to offer a memorable event of music and song--the annual Nativity program. Patient practice and rehearsing were evident in the selections presented before the audience.

The Spirit of Yuletide

Parents and the public watch the Nativity performance. An enjoyable evening was had with listening to the band and choir and taking in the decorations.

The coming of the Christmas season to the students of Elkhorn High School adds a little competitive spirit, along with long and hard work, to the holiday festivities.

Each class selected a room and decorated it during any free time; all students tried their best to outdo one another in choosing the best theme and constructing the most original decorations. One hour after school was set aside for the judges to make their evaluations. Everyone was in suspense to see which room was awarded the first prize. The seniors were very proud of the first place given their room. The juniors came in second, with the sophomores third and the freshmen fourth. Variety was very evident--ranging from Christmas beneath the sea to the kitchen of Mrs. Santa Claus to international peace and good will.

The Christmas season was made complete with the preparation for the concert by the band and choir.

The senior girls take a moment to relax and inspect their work in constructing a stained-glass effect on their room's windows.

Two junior class members help to erect their room's decorations. An interesting wall design helped to obtain the second placing.

Abounds at EHS

Mr. Hughes and Mr. Anderson worked very diligently to organize the program a week before the Christmas Concert. The band and choir members moved to the gymnasium for rehearsals.

The first rehearsal left a little to be desired, but more practice on the selections for the Nativity brought considerable improvement.

The concert was given before parents and residents of Elkhorn area on December 17th. After all of the rehearsals, the performance given was one to be proud of. The gym had been previously decorated by the art department and also lent to the spirit of the season.

The next day--being the last day of school before the Christmas recess--saw the decorations dismantled and much effort taken down from the chalk and bulletin boards.

The Christmas season was one of color, spirit, and activity. All had ceased and the pace lessened.

As two sophomore girls, Patti Kenney and Gloria Peck, glue the "bricks" on the fireplace for "Mrs. Santa's Kitchen," others confer on the door's design.

Curtain time was very exciting on April 5, 1963, as the Junior Class presented two, one-act plays. This first real effort of working together proved successful and displayed much previously unnoticed talent.

The forward compartment of a wrecked submarine was the setting for the drama "Submerged." A sun porch in a "clean-cut" American community provided the atmosphere for the farce comedy "Sunstroke." Miss Hintgen directed both plays.

Students, with faculty supervision, constructed the dismal, eerie submarine background that was ripped down and converted into the cheery sun porch between plays.

Thornfield Hall, a country estate in nineteenth-century England, was created for the Senior Class presentation of "Jane Eyre." Mr. Wehner directed the three-act drama.

The cast and crew worked hard memorizing lines, finding props, and making sets and costumes for the magic nights of November 15 and 16, 1963, when the play was presented before the public.

"L. J." is tossed out the window by Mary Jo and Isabella as Mrs. Weiskopf seems preoccupied with her reading. Peals of laughter were heard throughout the audience.

Fate finally catches up with Brice when the submarine's captain and crew confront him.

ATHLETICS

At an after-school practice period, A-squad football players increase their blocking skill and potential with the use of tackling dummies. Coaches Suchy and Thieleke realize the necessity of good blocking for their players in the backfield. An efficient block can mean the difference between a considerable gain in yardage or a loss.

Punting, Passing, and Kicking

In a very unusual scene, several Elks have their hands outstretched to grasp the football, while their opponents are literally at their feet.

Coach Fred Suchy's "A" squad football team finished the year with a fairly successful 1963 season. This year's grid-iron team of twenty-nine was composed of eight returning lettermen (all seniors), six other seniors, eleven juniors, and two sophomores.

Of the eleven juniors out this year, seven were starters on the very successful '62 "B" team.

Starting early in the year, August 19th, Coach Suchy's team was a pre-season favorite to take the conference title. The grid-ironers had experience, size in both the line and backs, speed, and spirit, but they lacked one very vital necessity to play the game--pass defense. Although the ELKS were able to overcome this handicap for the first three games, they were soon succumbed by teams taking advantage of this weakness. Elkhorn finished the season with a four-five record.

This year, Coach Suchy tried a new method of choosing the team captain; the senior starters took turns being captain.

At the end of the season, co-captains were half-back Dick Dailey and end Ken Burns. This successful arrangement will probably be repeated in future years at Elkhorn High School.

Letters were awarded to twenty-one players. Eight seniors made their second letter, and six made their first letter this year. Seven juniors made letters by playing sixty minutes or more. One sophomore was on the 1963 letter-making list, a very difficult job for any sophomore. The number of letters given to juniors and sophomores indicates a good future for football at EHS.

The football banquet was held at the F. & R. Steak Ranch and was sponsored by the Elkhorn chapter of the Lyons Club. Special awards were given to three Elkhorn players who made the All-Conference Team.

The squad members were Dick Dailey, Ken Burns, and Wally Utter. The tackling trophy also went to Wally Utter.

The good block can stop an on-rushing lineman short, so all must perfect this defensive maneuver.

This year's record of the junior varsity football team was a tribute to a fine coaching staff. Conditioning is a very important part of the game, and the Elks were the best conditioned team in the league. The B-team was improved by the freshman class which had many fine prospects.

This year, for the first time, competition between freshman teams in the area took place. The Elkhorn freshman team split a pair of games, beating Big Foot and losing to Delavan. By taking part in these contests, freshmen gain experience which they might not get otherwise during regular team play.

Looking back on this last football season, it was evident that in future years there will be a great number of good backs for Elkhorn. However, it may be some time before the Elks will have big linemen to block for the backs.

The lettermen of EHS compose an honorary organization known as the "E" Club, under the supervision of the boys' athletic director, Mr. Suchy. The aim of each of the group's participants is to promote good sportsmanship and increased interest in athletics within the high school enrollment and between students of the area.

Two of the highlights of the club during the year were the Football Banquet, held in November, and the Basketball Banquet, held in March; both of these dinners were sponsored by service organizations of the Elkhorn community.

Any boy may become a member of the "E" Club provided he has earned an athletic letter in any of the competitive sports offered at Elkhorn High School. The rules followed in awarding an athletic letter vary from one activity to another, but the regulations are stiff. The person receiving a letter has earned it.

Elizabeth Bill and Sharyn Bell serve the parents of the football players at an informal lunch after a game.

Coach Suchy gives his squad members a few brief words of strategy before a game. Here he is seen retrieving a basketball which has not reached its mark.

Coach Suchy started the 1963-1964 basketball season with perhaps the tallest team in his fourteen years of coaching. The squad consisted of six seniors, seven juniors, and one freshman. Of these fourteen players, eleven reach the six-foot mark and seven stood at six-two or better.

The tallest member of the squad was John Warthman. Warthman stood six-foot-six and has been a member of the varsity team since his freshman year. At the forward positions, Elkhorn was represented by six-five Guy Iverson, six-three Wayne Gubrud, and six-two Tom Findreng. Though only a freshman, Findreng has shown a good scoring potential and had been extremely tough on the boards. Iverson, a junior, lettered his sophomore year and was a good rebounder. Senior Wayne Gubrud, also a strong rebounder, was highly rated for his shooting ability. He led the team in shooting his junior year and was either in an identical position or very close to it this past season.

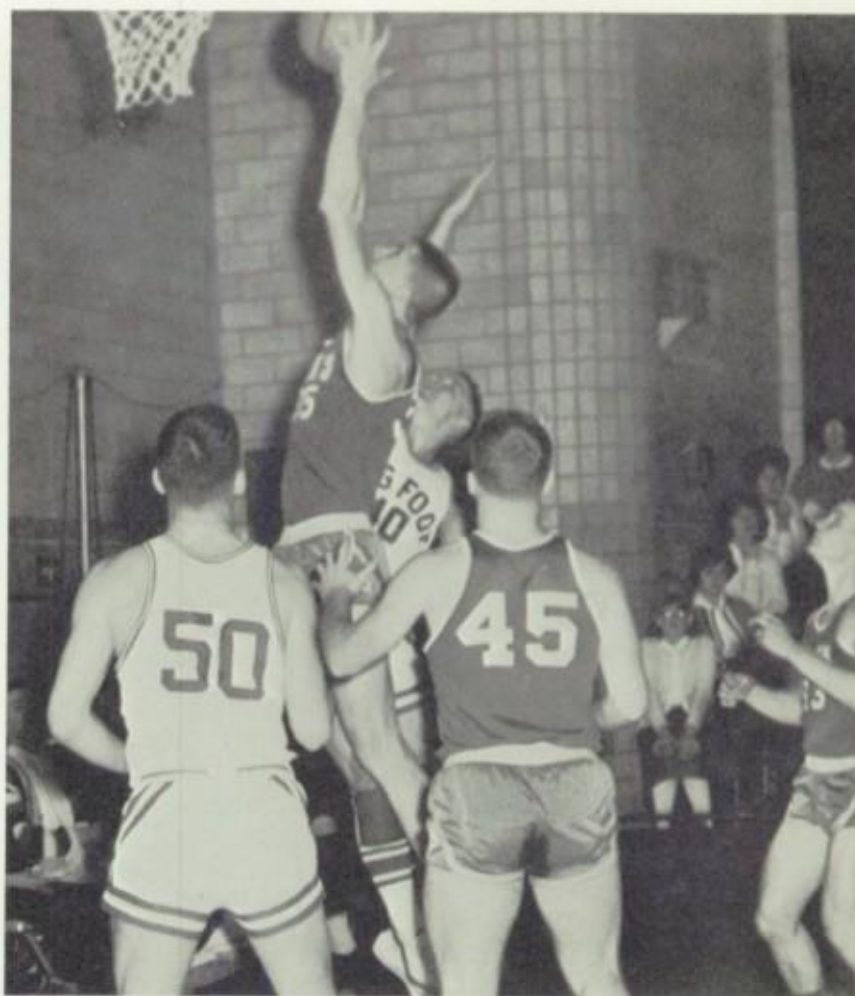

A Winning Combination:

One of the tensest moments in any basketball contest is a loose ball. Players from Elkhorn and Big Foot dive for the ball, as Pete Palmer moves in to recover it. Dennis McKenna, John Warthman, and Wayne Gubrud stand ready to give their assistance. Many shrieks from the spectators were heard on this play.

As guards, the Elkhorn team had Gary Riley, Dick Dailey, Dennis McKenna, and Pete Palmer. Palmer, a junior also, lettered last year as a sophomore and proved to be a deadly shot from the outside. McKenna, a third letterman, was one of the top defensive players and one of the best free-throw shooters. Gary Riley fought his way into the lineup after missing part of the season with a knee injury. He was given honorable mention to the all-conference second team a year ago. Dick Dailey fought back strong this fall, after he missed the second half of last season. More depth was supplied in another senior, Ken Burns, who was one of Coach Suchy's top reserves. Rounding out the squad was senior Fritz Hanford plus juniors, John Bigler, Mike Shaw, Daryl Fairchild, and Curt Quass.

The Elks were the pre-season pick of many forecasters to win the Southern Lakes championship. A fight for this coveted title was evident from the season's start.

Guy Iverson charges through some Big Foot players guarding the basket and makes his lay-up. Other Elk players stand ready to assist or get the rebound.

Molded to Assume a Place

Bob Johnson completes a shot from under the basket in the midst of several opponents.

The main task of the junior varsity coach, in basketball or any other competitive sport, is to build strong individual players and to teach the lessons of good team work, with the first goal being victory and the ultimate goal being the production of good senior varsity basketball players.

Following the basketball try-outs in mid-November, the team began practicing after school from four until six o'clock. The junior varsity played its games as a preliminary to the senior varsity contest; the visiting school brought their junior varsity team to challenge ours.

This year's squad started the season out rather slowly but came on strong toward the middle of the season with a nice winning streak. It was a strong team, with many players and much potential, that is going to offer several players a varsity career.

Mike Spragia was one of the team's most consistent players. Bob Johnson was much improved and Ken Riley did a fine job of shooting. Al Narish was a consistent rebounder and also a "scrappy" defensive player. Art Lietz and Ricky Tully showed the spectators their promise for future Elkhorn basketball teams.

Coaching the team again for the fifth year was Mr. Thieleke. Coach Thieleke's pattern-type offense is very familiar to those who follow Elkhorn High School basketball games. His teams have been known for their good sportsmanship and winning ways over the years. Functioning again in the role of assistant coach was Mr. Tollakson. From a fine coaching staff there arose a fine basketball team.

Many junior varsity cagers never get the opportunity to play senior varsity basketball, but their "J.V." training gives them an excellent education on the sport.

Tom Findreng makes a shot for the basket, and all eyes are on the basketball which is in mid-air.

Backing Our Team with Cheers

Today the cheerleaders hold more important and respectful places in school activities than ever before. Their sole purpose is to lead the home team supporters in a single, organized effort. The single cheer from the crowd gives a feeling of solid, stalwart support.

The role of the cheerleader has changed from the ordinary part of leading cheers to actually stimulating and developing school pep and spirit. This project is undertaken at pep rallies, where the cheerleaders introduce new cheers to the student body--to be practiced at that night's game.

Any student may try out for the cheerleading squad. Each cheerleader tryout is judged and chosen for his abilities by a selected group of athletes and faculty.

The EHS cheerleaders spend many hours preparing and practicing their routines. It is not an infrequent sight to see the girls going through their cheers each night in front of the trophy case.

During the football season, each cheerleader must perform once a week at the game, and, during the basketball season, there are often two games a week to attend, in addition to the pep sessions.

From this brief synopsis of a cheerleader and her activities, one may see and realize how much time and energy must go into her work.

With Physical and Mental Agility

Coach Gene Conger's 1963-1964 wrestling team showed great ability and promise at the outset of this season. This is only Elkhorn's second competitive year in this fast-growing sport. Four returning lettermen in this sport greatly enlightened the members' hopes for a successful season.

The success of last year's wrestling team and the purchase of a regulation-size wrestling mat helped the squad's turnout. Besides freshmen and sophomores, many upperclassmen have also joined the team. The sport is young, but many boys are experiencing the excitement of wrestling.

This year's team finished the season with a conference meet at Badger High School, a sectional tournament at Clinton, Wisconsin, and the state finals at Madison.

The boys used the small gym after school where, under the direction and instruction of Mr. Conger, they practiced new holds and leverages and perfected their basic skills.

Coach Conger watches as Mike Bromeland and Sam Olivas get poised to begin a practice match in wrestling.

The Elkhorn High School track team, under the coaching of Mr. Conger, finished a relatively successful 1963 season.

Although lacking the depth needed in almost every event, Elkhorn fared well with the best of the teams in the conference meet. Though the team was small in comparison to some of its opponents, the EHS track members were well represented in all races and most field events.

In the sectional track meet at Mukwonago High School, the quarter-mile medley team of Utter, Kayser, Powell, and DeLange secured a third place against many of the best teams, many from class A high schools.

The track team is being molded and rebuilt by Coach Conger. Track letters were presented to the outstanding members of the team. The turnout of underclassmen for the 1963 track season made Elkhorn's track future seem very bright and promising.

The 1962-1963 school year was Elkhorn's first year under its new baseball coach, Mr. Fisher. In his first year, Coach Fisher was faced with a rebuilding problem, as the squad consisted mainly of underclassmen.

The team slowly gained experience, and they reached their peak late in the season by beating first-place Wilmot with a four-to-one score.

John Neito, a returning letterman, closed out his high school career by pitching Elkhorn to a one hit, seven-to-nothing shutout over Burlington High School. In this game Neito struck out twenty-one men and evened Elkhorn's season record to four and four.

The outstanding players of the year were awarded baseball letters at honors convocations at the close of the school year.

The outlook for the 1963-1964 baseball season seemed very bright, because there will be some lettermen returning to the squad.

Mr. Wolf demonstrates the correct hold on the tennis racket for returning a volley.

Each spring, several girls vie for places on the tennis team. Under the coaching of Miss Schlough, the girls practice for matches with other schools in the area.

The team members for each of the matches were determined by the top seven positions on a tennis "ladder" at that time. There was competition between Elkhorn and other schools who wished to participate.

During the competition of last year, our high school team was the only one not to lose a single match. At honors convocations, seven of the girls received letters for their participation.

The boys' tennis team also compiled a noteworthy season. Under the guidance of Mr. Wolf, the Elk netters brought the conference title here--for the third straight year. Because Elkhorn lost its first conference match in three seasons to Delavan early in the season, they didn't gain the title until the last match had been played.

The deciding match with Delavan was a tennis marathon--lasting three hours and forty-five minutes. All other conference matches were won by our Elkhorn team.

Above Par for Being Under "Par"

As soon as the weather allows in the spring, the boys' golf team members appear on the fairways and greens to practice their drives and putting. All try their hardest to fight their way out of sand traps and other golfing hazards.

The squad played a series of meets with schools included in our conference. During the regular season, the team played in fourteen matches, winning nine and losing five of the meets. The boys beat Badger, Whitewater, Big Foot, East Troy, Mukwonago, and Wilmot high schools. In the conference meet, the Elk golfers placed eighth in the field of participants. The W.I.A.A. sectional tournament concluded the season; the Elk team came in seventh out of thirteen teams.

Mr. Tollakson awarded Pete Palmer, Tom Godfrey, Dennis McKenna, George Daacon, and Tom Enloe letters for their contributions.

An interesting note on the 1964 golf season is that all the sophomores on the '63 team will be returning.

Golf is one of the newest competitive sports at EHS and is gaining more popularity each year.

The girls' golf team is a relatively new spring activity. Designed basically for girls with an avid interest in golf, the competition with other schools teaches the members both good sportsmanship and dependence on their fellow teammates.

Practice begins each spring at the Delbrook Golf Course, Delavan, as soon as the weather becomes suitable.

A training period is held every night after school, under the direction of the coach, Mrs. Schoppe.

Last year's only loss was at the hands of Badger High. The girls made an impressive record.

The freshmen began a new, and sometimes bewildering, year of activities this fall. Assembled together as a high school class for the first time, the members elected their officers. Ahead of each student was four years of study, cooperation, and fun.

Filled with enthusiasm and the prospect of doing something new and different, the freshmen worked hard together as a unit to win a first-placing in both their "many-legged" float and "West Side Story" skit.

Not content with excelling in social activities, the students also demonstrated their scholastic ability and determination by placing a large number of members on the honor roll.

The freshmen overflowed with enthusiasm for athletics, clubs, and band.

Great potential lies in the Class of '67, the largest freshman class in the history of Elkhorn High School.

Last year's freshmen were not acquainted with the intricate system involved in attending high school, but this year the sophomores were more confident in their position. They were better known by their upperclassmen, too.

Led by competent officers, the class moved on. Carol Hart represented her class on the Homecoming court. The whole class pitched in to help build the float in the midst of Homecoming.

Their Christmas theme, "Mrs. Santa's Kitchen," was a well-thought out novelty--as members of all classes agreed.

The sophomores were well represented in athletics of all kinds, so Elkhorn can look forward to top varsity teams next year.

They will have many responsibilities, new privileges, and some more studying to look forward to next year.

The guidance department administered a battery of merit tests to the junior class. The year in which these students will graduate is not far distant. The best preparedness for this time is action now!

The Challenge to Lead—Class of 1965

The junior class at large nominated these four competent officers: Ruth Ann Jansen, Secretary; John Byrnes, Pres.; Larry Matthews, Vice Pres.; and Tim Lasch, Treas.

The Class of '65 began the year by electing officers: John Byrnes, Pres.; Larry Matthews, Vice Pres.; Ruth Ann Jansen, Secretary; and Tim Lasch, Treas.

To the Class of '65, their junior year was a year to begin considering their plans for the future. In October, in preparation for college, many juniors took the Preliminary Scholarship Aptitude Test to see how well they fared in comparison with other juniors across the nation. Other juniors attended a college night held at Badger High in Lake Geneva.

The year was highlighted by the appearance of those long-awaited class rings.

A new feeling of togetherness was revealed as the class began working to make their Junior Class Play and Prom a success.

Their spirit was evident throughout the year as they tried to equal their performance as last year's winners of the Spirit Cup.

A supreme effort was the senior class production of "Jane Eyre." Kathy Kolden, Diane Magill, Dick Dailey, and Barbara Conover make their appearances before the footlights on the opening night. The scenery and costumes merit some of the success achieved by the production. Hard work and long hours went into this effort.

The Door

Counseling and guiding the seniors is the task of their advisors--SEATED: Mrs. Newman, Miss Ruh-sam, Mrs. Schoppe. STANDING: Mr. Fruth, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Wehner, Mr. Neinfeldt.

The Class of '64 began their last year by electing a capable staff of international officers: President Mary Peterson, returning from a year's study in Australia; Demir Ercin, our AFS student from Turkey; Treasurer Bernie Gonzales; and Secretary Carol Watson.

With class spirit and help from our able advisors, we successfully completed our Homecoming float with its giant Elk and his "Elk-a-Seltzer" tablets.

The Homecoming float was only the beginning. As time progressed, activities changed, and the seniors altered their plans to meet them.

The year continued and several major decisions had to be made for graduation. Spirited debate continued throughout the student body before voting on the choice of caps and gowns.

Our motto for the future seemed to cast a shadow on our past--"The Door to Success Is Labeled Push."

Decisions, decisions, decisions. The senior class is certainly bombarded with decisions concerning graduation exercises and future plans. At a meeting of the entire class, the possible choices of a graduation gown and cap are pondered. Each senior voted for his choice later in the year.

A portion of Demir's "Americanization" was probably a result of the "twist." Our AFS student undoubtedly found that it gets easier after each try.

During his stay in Elkhorn, Demir made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Barton Gleason and their family.

Wrestling was only one of the sports that Demir participated in while at EHS. Football and track were on his list of activities also.

Influence from the Near East

Demir Ercin brought the Near East to Elkhorn when he arrived in August, 1963. It was a great distance from his home and Izmir College in Izmir, Turkey, to the Barton Gleason family and EHS.

The Senior Class recognized his leadership and personality when they elected him vice-president of the Class of '64. Demir also served as an active member of the EHS Student Council.

Demir demonstrated his enthusiasm for the sports offered at our high school and showed great speed, determination, and ability while participating in football, wrestling, and track.

A birthday celebration was given to Demir on October 8th. He was honored at a surprise assembly as the entire student body and faculty looked on. The Student Council presented him with an Elkhorn High letter-jacket. The senior class bought him a class ring. Later in the year, he became an honorary citizen of Elkhorn when the mayor presented him with the key to the city. We hope he has enjoyed his year at EHS.

Demir chats with his American brother and sister. Linda is a freshman at EHS.
